DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1- 6 and 10-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Thomson et al. (US 5734255).

Thomson et al. teach the construction of a controller (64) for one or more generator sets (54, 55 and 56) connectable to a load (34), each generator set having the ability to be started and stopped and a monitoring structure (Column 8, Lines 35-45) connectable to a utility source (54, 55, 56) which provides AC power having a magnitude and a power factor, AC voltage having a magnitude and a frequency, and AC current having a magnitude and a frequency, the monitoring structure measuring the magnitude and the frequency of the AC voltage and the AC current and providing the same to the user interface for display(69); the controller including:

a generator communications link (39) for connecting the generator set to a network (40), an engine (57), and a generator driven by the engine which generates AC power having a magnitude and a power factor and AC voltage having a magnitude and a frequency, and transmits the magnitude and the power factor of the AC power of the utility source and the magnitudes and frequencies of the AC voltage and AC current of the utility source to each of the generator sets connected to the network, comprising:

a user interface (Column 8, Lines 53-55) for allowing a user to select a generator set and to set values for various predetermined operating parameters of the selected generator set, wherein the user interface includes a display screen (69), a generator settings screen for each generator set connected to the network, each generator settings screen allowing the user to input the values of a portion of the various operating parameters of the selected generator set; and a communications link (39) connectable to the network for transmitting the user set values of the predetermined operating parameters to the selected generator set.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 7-9 and 16-24 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Thomson et al. (US 5734255) in view of Nyenya (US 5278771).

Art Unit: 2834

Thomson et al. disclose the claimed invention except where the first of the various operating parameters is a starting time for starting the selected generator.

Nyenya teach the use of a programmable timed electrical power management device for the purpose of for protecting and controlling electrical equipment plugged into it.

It would have been obvious to one skilled in the art at the time the invention was made to use the programmable timed electrical power management device disclosed by Nyenya on the controller disclosed by Thomson for the purpose of for protecting and controlling electrical equipment plugged into it.

With regards to claims 19-24, it is inherent in the structure of Thomson et al. to perform the operation as claimed, i.e. the transmission of the parameters through the claimed communications link of the network.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. See PTO-892.
